

CURRICULUM

First Brazilian to receive a doctorate in guitar performance, Daniel Wolff is one of Brazil's most acclaimed musicians. In addition to a successful career as a performer, he is also an accomplished composer, arranger and teacher.

A Bachelor of Music from the Uruguayan University Music School in Montevideo, at the class of virtuoso guitarist Eduardo Fernández, Wolff was also a student of the renowned guitarist Abel Carlevaro and composer Guido Santórsola.

With grants awarded by the Brazilian government, Wolff obtained the Master of Music and Doctor of Music degrees from New York's prestigious Manhattan School of Music, at the class of Manuel Barrueco. His academic accomplishments led to him being given the Helen Cohn Award for outstanding performance. During his stay in the United States, Wolff played in masterclasses for some of the world's leading guitarists, including Julian Bream, David Russel, Roberto Aussel and the Assad Brothers.

Mr. Wolff was the first prize winner of both the Mozarteum Guitar Contest and the Villa-Lobos Guitar Competition. He was also the first guitarist to ever win the Porto Alegre Symphony Orchestra Young Soloists Competition. In 1997 he won the 25th Artists International Competition (New York), resulting in his debut recital at New York's Carnegie Recital Hall.

Such awards led to a successful career, with performances in Brazil, France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Norway, Greece, Poland, Switzerland, Croatia, Austria, México, Chile, Colombia, Bolivia, Peru, Argentina, Uruguay, Canada and the United States. He has appeared as a soloist with the SODRE Orchestra (Uruguay), Versoix Chamber Orchestra (Switzerland), Toluca Symphony (México), Sinfonia Cultura and USP Symphony Orchestra (São Paulo), Teatro São Pedro and ULBRA Chamber Orchestras, the Symphony Orchestras of Bahia, Porto Alegre, Natal and Mogi das Cruzes, Unisinos Orchestra, UCS Symphony and Pró-Música Orchestra, among others.

As an arranger and composer, he had his works performed by the WREN Orchestra of London, New York Chamber Soloists, Georgia Symphony and Quintet of the Americas (USA), Landeszupforchesters Berlin and Saar (Germany), Buenos Aires International Music Festival and Salta State orchestras (Argentina), Sinfonia Cultura (São Paulo), Porto Alegre Symphony, Unisinos Orchestra, UCS Symphony, the Teatro São Pedro and ULBRA chamber orchestras. He wrote a number of works for the Camerata Consort, of which he was Conductor and Artistic Director.

His arrangements have been recorded in the United States by such musicians as Carlos Barbosa-Lima, Berta Rojas, Paul Winter, Thiago de Mello and Sharon Isbin, resulting in a Grammy Award and twice the Açorianos Prize for best arranger. He has been widely acknowledged for his orchestral arrangements of popular music, having contributed to a number of recordings.

His compositions, published in Germany by Trekel, Tre Fontane and Verlag Neue Musik, were recorded in Brazil, Germany and the United States. He also wrote full-feature film soundtracks, which were awarded prizes in Brazil's two largest film festivals. His ballet Quadressencias was released in DVD by the UCS Symphony and Caxias do Sul Dance Company. In 2017, he won the 4th International Songwriting Contest "Ibermúsicas".

Daniel is at the faculty of the Rio Grande do Sul Federal University (UFRGS), where he directs an international guitar festival. He was also a Guest Professor at Berlin's Universität der Künste and at the Aveiro University (Portugal). His presence is frequently required for courses and masterclasses, having taught at leading universities and music festivals in Brazil, Germany, Argentina, Uruguay, Colombia, Bolívia, Peru, México, Portugal and the United States. He has also published articles in periodicals in England, Portugal, Brazil, Germany and the United States.

He has released several CDs in Brazil, Germany and Uruguay, featuring solo and chamber music, as well as songs and concerti with orchestra. These have received warm reviews worldwide, plus three entries for the Grammy Awards and a number of prizes in Brazil.

"A first rate guitarist. He commands the instrument in all its subtleties and technical complexities. The competence of a master."

GUITAR PLAYER MAGAZINE

"Daniel Wolff's talents are very impressive. A CD in the top range of disks you are likely to hear in a long time."

CLASSICAL GUITAR MAGAZINE, England

"Brilliant technique. Intense musicality. Daniel Wolff aims with his music at the heart of the listener. Vehement applause."

DOLOMITEN, Italy

"Excellent. A beautiful and well-succeeded album."

AKUSTIK GITARRE, Germany

"A musician of great worth. A virtuoso soloist."

ELDORADO MAGAZINE, Argentina

"A gorgeously expressionistic recording that offers listeners the rainbow of Brazilian classical achievements in the 20th century."

ALL MUSIC GUIDE, USA

"Highly sophisticated and emotional."

ÚLTIMAS NOTICIAS, Uruguay

"Exceptional conditions for the guitar. Privileged aptitude to succeed in the most difficult tasks."

ABEL CARLEVARO, Guitarist, Uruguay

"A highly qualified artist. Ample talent. Simply impeccable."

TRIBUNA DA IMPRENSA, Rio de Janeiro

"A flawless performance."

THE NEW MUSIC CONNAISSEUR, New York

"BRAVO! Wonderful performances and arrangements."

SHARON ISBIN, Guitarist, Professor, The Julliard School, USA

"His playing and compositions are magnificent."

GRAHAM WADE, Guitarist & writer, professor - universities of Leeds and York, England

"A musician of exceptional talent and dedication. A secure and refined technique with an exquisite tone."

NICHOLAS GOLUSES, Guitarist, Professor - Eastman School of Music, USA

"Excellent technical command and refined interpretative taste. Deeply talented on the art of arrangements and transcriptions."

CARLOS BARBOSA-LIMA, Guitarist, Brazil